"The conventionalist government does not see, does not wish to see, in the substance of the declarations made by his excellency, President William and the path in the path to the end pursued by the revolution. Coming to the declaration path if we Mexicans cannot settle our differences within a very short time the government of the American union will find itself constrained to decide as to what means it shall use to bring it about, the conventionalist government cannot understand how Breadless Wilson previously declars. in the same note that the United States does not desire or claim any right to settle the affairs of Mexico and more to the same effect. The Indianapolis the following categorical declarations: I am proud to belong to a pow erful nation which says that that country (Mexico) which we could crush will enjoy the same liberty in the management of its affairs as we enjoy. If I am strong I should be ashamed to dictate to the weak in the measure of my strength. My pride consists in keeping my strength free and not in oppressing another people with it. a

If, contrary to the interpretation which in the most friendly sense the conventionist government puts upon President Wilson's declarations, this closing part should signify a denial of the instinctive sympathy generously demonstrated to the Mexican revoludemonstrated to the Mexican revolusion and should further signify pressure or threat, the conventionist government still harboring the conscience of its sacrifices will maintain the dignify of the Mexican people. We conclined, however, to conjecture that the general idea of the government of the United States is to help us in a friend-United States in the Val Susana, the Italians and destroyed in the Val Susana, the Italians destroyed in the Val Susana, the Italians and the Val Susana, the Italians destroyed in the Val Susana, the Italians and the Val Susana, the Italians destroyed for some of the cases of N.
